To whom it concerns,

Re Corangamite redistribution and renaming.

Democracy is government of the people by the people while I appreciate the mathematical requirements of population ranges within seats, some consideration of the principals of our democratic institution is warranted.

Splitting a local government shire in half does not enhance community of interest/s that network thought out the district and undermine the democratic principal and spirit of representation.

Likewise the renaming may have some basis as purely historical exercise but removing the name associated with the largest geographical feature of the region removes a sense of connection the people of the region have with the federal seat and further undermines what little appreciation we have for our system of government.

Thank-you for your time

Regards,

Michael Delahunty
