Subject: Objection: Corangamite Electorate change
Date: Friday, 4 May 2018 2:07:44 PM

Please acknowledge and consider the following objection I am making to the name change of the Corangamite Electorate.

I have lived and voted in this Electorate for 36 years. My current address is: [REDACTED]

PLEASE do everything possible to prevent the name-change of the Corangamite electorate to Cox.

As a mature woman I could not bare the inevitable smutty, smirky, sarcastic jokes & comments that will spew from the immature ranks of the current bunch of predominantly male federal parliamentarians. At my age I am over that crass behaviour, our society has moved so far forward in its expectations for the treatment of women in the work place, especially since #metoo.

The current representative, Sarah Henderson, and future women and men MPs for this region, deserve better. The name Cox will simply place my elected representative at risk of workplace negative, harmful innuendo and harassment.

Further, the name Cox does not socially or geographically represent the entire Corangamite electorate, just a tiny area at Queenscliff...My understanding is that Ms Cox did not even live within this Electorate.

Surely a more representative name can be selected, ideally one that recognises our amazing and important aboriginal heritage in this region. The current name of Corangamite is such a positively recognisable name.

Please, my electorate needs the dignity of a truly representative name, NOT one that will encourage workplace harassment, negative comments and derogatory innuendo across the media & in parliament.

I would greatly appreciate some response to my concerns.

Kind regards,
Jenny Tamblyn
