Two worthy locals

Allan Henshaw "Name it for a local" (Letters, 20/6) is correct. Vivian Bullwinkel was indeed a perfect example of wartime nursing. Her statue was recently dedicated at the War Museum in Canberra. The first woman depicted. However, there were two born and bred West Australian nurses massacred at Bangka Island. Alma Beard of Toodyay and Minnie Hodgson, who nursed in the York region, where her descendants still farm. The electorate should be Hodgson-Beard after West Australian nurses who died for their country. Bullwinkel was a visitor to our State, wonderful achiever that she was.
